

As for my professional goal, since I have been engaged in Chinese language teaching for both native speakers and foreign students for almost four years, I hope to become a user experience designer or product manager of Chinese language technology products, which I can turn my teaching experience into technology products to help Chinese learners gain a better understanding of Chinese through games, mobile apps and online learning websites.

As for my academic goal, I hope to improve my ability of making webpages in Chinese language learning through mastering interactive programming languages such as HTML/Css/JavaScript, and learn about essential user research, user experience knowledge to improve the ability of interaction design, which is the indispensable skill to become an UX/UI designer. Besides, I also hope to learn some new pedagogics and teaching theories, which I think theories can better assist in the design of technology products that current market-available products lack.
